Special "Hug a Borg for Christmas" Issue •
December 1996

 HELLO OSFW ***

The December Christmas party will be held Saturday, Dec. 14th, at Susan Bishoff's house. This is a pot-luck affair, spouse/guest and children invited. Time: 7:00 P.M. Address: 7455 South Knoxville, Tulsa. Directions: From Harvard and 81st, drive north toward 71st on Harvard until you reach 75th Place. Turn right into Denwood Estates and go to Indianapolis. Turn left and go 1 block to 75th Street. Turn right and follow 75th past Jamestown to end of cul de sac, where it joins South Knoxville at the bottom of a hill. Jim and Susan's house is at the top of a hill; watch for street number on mailbox by driveway entrance. If you make a wrong turn and end up on a glacial plain surrounded by reindeer and penguins you've gone too far.

 OSFW ANONYMOUS ***

"Hello...my name's Bob, and I, ah God,...I write spuh...speculative fiction!"

Don't forget to write an entry for the annual OSFW two-page story excerpt game (something not read at a prior meeting). It should have a title, but no author listed. Put it in a manila envelope and submit it at the door when you arrive to be mixed into an anonymous pile. Later, we'll read them and try to guess the authors. A prize will be awarded.

Also, if you wish to be part of the OSFW gift exchange, bring a wrapped present (in keeping with the theme of sf or writing or just plain fun) in the $10 range. All gifts will be numbered, then numbers drawn in an all-out cut-throat free-for-all, no-holds-barred exchange totally in keeping with the spirit of the season. Be there or be square.

Neither Van Gelder or Rusch are reading manuscripts until the changeover is complete. F&SF publisher Ed Ferman asks that writers previously published in the magazine are free to continue submitting stories, but all other writers should hold submissions until the new year. (KD and Warren, go for it!) Van Gelder will remain at St. Martin's in a slightly diminished capacity, cutting his list down to one book a month.

TOMORROW editor and publisher Algis Budrys recently announced that the magazine will switch to a completely electronic format in 1997. Budrys will produce the 24th and final print issue this month. "There isn't a newsstand magazine out there that is gaining circulation," Budrys told the online Science Fiction Week (<http://www.scifi.com>). "Every one of them is losing. I know I've been losing money, and it's time for a change." Budrys said he is not sure if the electronic TOMORROW will land on the World Wide Web or with one of the proprietary on-line services.

IT'S NEITHER SPHERE NOR THERE

Warner Bros. reportedly "fired" more than 200 local workers in the town of Vallejo, Calif., last month because they were ahead of production on an underwater set to be used in the filming of SPHERE, based on Michael Crichton's novel of the same name. The workers were let go temporarily so other work sites could catch up. Filming is expected to start by the end of January 1997. The film also reportedly had its budget cut, but stars including Dustin Hoffman are still on board.

The Son He Never Had & Vamp Dances With Wolves

We packed 'em in like cattle at Barb's parents' house — a two-year high of 16, I believe. Perhaps some unseen, unknowable cosmic pendulum has swung back and we'll work our way back to 26+ attendance meetings, in which folks battle for the right to read and attack the snack table like a band of famished Klingons (remember the old days?). We yacked and had a swell time, and still found time to hear a short story and a longish chapter.

Greg read his first post-OLYMPIA KID fiction, a short story titled "Of All the Words." An overworked executive who traded a full happy life to get ahead starts receiving phone messages from the All-American son he never had. Soon a photo of his alternate-life son appears in his wallet. On impulse he attends a football game at his old high school and sees his "son" make the winning play. Suddenly he begins questioning the choices he has made (he's divorced and has had more Blockbuster Nights than the Elephant Man). When he is "downsized" by his company he drives across into his fantasy life to be greeted by his old school sweetheart and pigskin-running son. (Happily we do not shift to the scene where two railroad workers puzzle over the man who has inexplicably jumped from the moving train in Rod Serling's "A Stop in Willouby.")

Rob read Chapter 3 of his historical/present-day fantasy & horror vampire novel, FIRST COMMUNION. Adrian, an 800-year-old bisexual vampire, has committed the unspeakable sin of killing a human (hooker). He is also undergoing some inexplicable and unstoppable transformation that goes beyond joining the ranks of the undead. He needs less and less blood to survive and his skin is becoming impenetrable. Once the enforcer of vampiric law, Adrian finds himself an outlaw who is being remade into some godlike "monster." He may have also exposed his friend and lover, Tonio, to whatever is remaking him.

"I most like stories with some sort of point to them, beyond the plot twists, and I'm a sucker for a kicker ending. I really hate stories that just . . . stop. My tastes tend to be more serious than lighthearted, but if you can make me laugh, I'll buy it. I don't want the magazine to be totally unleavened despair. But, please, no puns. I have to be careful about sexually explicit material, since the magazine is/will be displayed prominently at 12-year-old eye level, but I am not publishing for 12-year-olds. I do want stories for grown-ups." The editor recently clarified what kind of fantasy she is looking for: "What I like is the unusual. It doesn't have to be a new idea—god knows there are few enough of them—but I do prefer that it be a new look at a familiar idea or setting. That's why I'm not too fond of 'standard' fantasy, since much of it seems to be the same stock characters with different names setting off on slightly different quests. I like to see new settings, exotic mythologies, new looks at familiar characters, places, and settings. I'm not into 'joke' stories, where puns are the main thrust of the action, and I'm not crazy about horror, though I do like a good ghost story now and again. But when I say I'm not crazy about horror, that doesn't mean I won't take any—it just has to be different from either your sexy, tortured vampire, your tormented werewolf, or your gibbering horrors from beyond the known world." Please do not send self-addressed postcards with submissions. Payment: 5-8 cents/word. Return time: 2-3 weeks up to 4

 GPIC NEWS AND ARTICLES *****

GPIC solicits news and articles from OSFW members. We prefer they be on disk or sent via e-mail. Pseudonyms are OK. We accept files on either a 3-inch Mac or PC disk (720k or 1.4 meg. — no 2.8 meg). We like RTF files but we can convert most Word and Word Perfect files; always include a separate ASCII file just in case. Otherwise, arrange to send them by e-mail to Simon at internet:mccaffes.vyvx1@gw.twc.com. You retain copyright on material. If this is of special concern you might let us know who you really are along with your pseudonym. We reserve the right to edit (although we try not to).
